May Wheat Drops to $1.50 as Market Advanced, but Rallies to $1.54 at Close.

SENTIMENT IS VERY BEARISH

OMAHA, Feb. 13, 1915.

Had the grain markets in the United States, closed because of Lincoln's birthday, been open for business yesterday, it was the impression of operators who were on the curb that lower prices would have prevailed.

Settiment was bearish both in the very beautiful, rare designs, to trade for used furniture diamonds, merchandise; or what have you? Address S. C. 604 care Omaha Bee.

British cable dispatches had much influence toward emphasizing bearish sentiment regarding wheat. This was particularly the case us to reports that greatly increased shipments from Argentina to Europe would be brought about by action of Premier Asquith concerning the release of vessels which would be available at Buenos Ayres. A reduction of Argentine ocean freight rates was taken as significant and so, too. was Argentine pressure to sell at decidedly lower prices.

Depression of the corn market was discussed to the weakless of wheat. Relatively corn showed notable strength. Rural offerings, although slightly enlarged, were not excessive and were readily absorbed. Liberal shipping demand, both domestic and foreign, helped to prevent any radical setback in oats. The cash sales of oats here today were estimated as amounting to $50,000 bushels.

Provisions gave way under selling which was led by the packers. Lowered prices for grain cut a good deal of figure and so, also, did forecasts of big arrivals of hogs for next week.

"When it was safe again in the open our companies advanced through the hole which had been blown in the French position. The first trench was full of dead soldiers and some who had been buried alive. In the second and third trenches the French were so rattled that they surrendered easily. Inside of half an hour we had taken the entire force of the three trenches eight officers and 278 men. Two officers were among the

"We also took three mine-catapults from the French. Our losses were three dead and seven wounded. But we were lucky, indeed. Among the French prisoners we took were some pioneers, who told us that they had mined our trenches at eight points, but had not been able so far to place the mines. They had attempted too much and had lost.
